King George County earns national achievement award for Information Technology

WASHINGTON – King George County has been recognized with an Achievement Award from the National Association of Counties (NACo). The awards honor innovative, effective county government programs that strengthen services for residents.

The National Association of Counties (NACo) is pleased to grant King George County a 2018 Achievement Award for its program titled “Bringing The Board Meeting Home” in the category of Information Technology.

Congratulations to everyone involved in developing this innovative program! Your hard work will yield positive results for King George County residents.

Ruby A. Brabo, At-Large Supervisor, King George County stated: “This is fantastic news for our County to be recognized in this fashion. In this day and age, we are grateful for the ability to use technology in our rural community to provide more accessibility and transparency in government, thus allowing our residents to engage in the civic process.”

NACo President Roy Charles Brooks said, “Counties seize opportunities to deliver services more efficiently and build stronger communities every day. Achievement Award-winning programs are examples for counties that are determined to enhance services for our residents.”

Nationally, awards are given in 18 different categories that reflect the vast, comprehensive services counties provide. The categories include children and youth, criminal justice, county administration, information technology, health, civic engagement and many more.

NACo will recognize award-winning counties at its 2018 Annual Conference and Exposition July 13-16 in Nashville/Davidson County, Tennessee.

Started in 1970, NACo’s annual Achievement Awards program is designed to recognize county government innovations. Each nominee is judged on its own merits and not against other applications received.
