King George County Economic Development Authority sells multiple lots to Greenchip Inc.

King George, Va. – The King George Economic Development Authority is pleased to announce the sale of lots 7, 8, and 10, totaling approximately 21 acres, to Greenchip, Inc. Greenchip will begin designing and planning its new facility at the King George Industrial Park in the coming weeks.

The Fredericksburg Regional Alliance at the University of Mary Washington played an integral role in Greenchip choosing the King George Industrial Park as their expansion location. “We are excited for Greenchip’s continued investment in the Fredericksburg region. We congratulate the King George EDA’s efforts in closing this project,” said FRA’s Vice-President, Todd Gillingham.

Greenchip is a full-service electronics waste recycler providing a comprehensive range of ITAD and e-waste services to government agencies, Fortune 500 companies, and the public. Greenchip’s headquarters is located in Brooklyn, New York, with an additional facility in a nearby locality. “We look forward to growing in King George and growing with the community,” said Greenchip’s CEO, Bill Monteleone.

The EDA is extraordinarily pleased about Greenchip’s expansion in the King George Industrial Park. EDA Chair Rebekah Gallamore said: “This sale is a team effort with everyone taking an active role in facilitating Greenchip’s recruitment to our community.”
